Burning Gasoline Jelly Is Dropped On Korean Bases

Superforts Let Drope 70 Tons at Pyongyang

Seoul, Korea (AP)—U. N. warplanes roared into North Korea today in a follow-up of last night's heavy bombing of Communist supply depots near the Red capital of Pyongyang and in Northeast
Korea.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force said
it dropped 70 tons of high explosives
on a Red supply area at Pyong-
yang.

The U. S. Eighth Army said that after five days of superior fighting was light and drad.

Seven B29 Superforts last night
dropped 70 tons of high explosives
on a Red supply area at Pyong-
yang.

The Superfort pilots reported moderate flak over the target, a 0-acre area containing many supply facilities.

The Air Force said 14 B26 light bombers in another night raid attacked a Red supply concentration
at Pukchong, 35 miles northeast of Pyongyang.

FIFTH RECESS IS CALLED IN KOREA

Munsan, Korea (AP)—United States and Communist negotiations today called their fifth straight week-long recess in the orean truce talks after a Red propaganda blast over shooting of Communist prisoners in U. N.
CJW camps.

The truce teams talked only 33
minutes in a new Red-built conference hut at Panmunjom.

Neither side budged on the prior exchange deadlock, final issue blocking an armistice.

At the suggestion of Maj. Gen.
William K. Harrison, chief U. N.
delegate, they recessed until Sept.
1.

For the past month, the delegations have met only once a week.

MASTER OF ACHESON PUT UP TO LEGION

New York (AP)—The American Legion convention today received report demanding that President Dwight D. Eisenhower be named master of the convention.

The report submitted to the 34th
annual Legion convention in Madison Square Garden said:

"Our patience is exhausted. We demand immediate action on this important subject. We accept nothing less."

The report was submitted by the foreign relations committee of the legion and was read to the convention by chairman Rogers Kelly
of Edinburg, Texas.

V. P. Johnson Dies Suddenly; Stricken With Heart Attack

William P. Johnson, well known and respected citizen of 119 Russell street, died suddenly at his home at 8:30 a. m. today after suffering a heart attack a short time
earlier. He had been in apparent good health and his passing comes
as a shock to all who knew him.

Firemen from the Central station were summoned with the emergency truck and pneulator
when Mr. Johnson was stricken.
It reported later that the equipment was useless, since he was dead upon their arrival.

Admits Robbing Brinks of $65,000

(NEA Telephoto)
CONFESSES—Washington, D.
C., police say that Ray E. Farmer, above, admitted the robbery of $65,000 from an unattended
Brinks armored truck. Police said that Farmer, a former Brinks employee, robbed the truck by using a duplicate key
which he had made three years ago. The money was recovered by police in a Maryland amusement park.

Marshall's Critics Are Taken to Task By Adlai Stevenson

By DON WHITEHEAD
New York (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson today accused the attackers of Gen. George C. Marshall today of hiding under a cloak of patriotism which he called "the last refuge of scoundrels."

The Democratic presidential nominee did not use any names
but he left no doubt that one of the main targets of his bitter blast
was Republican Sen. Joseph Mc-Carthy of Wisconsin—one-time
recipient of an American Legion
award for Americanism.

McCarthy has accused Marshall,
former secretary of state and former secretary of defense, of being party to a plot against the security of his own country.

Stevenson launched his surprise statement in a speech written for the American Legion convention
meeting in Madison Square Garden, where GOP presidential nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower spoke only two days ago.

Also, Stevenson figuratively
wagged a finger under the Leg-ion's nose and told them he would not submit to any pressures from the Legion if he thought their demands were "excessive or in conflict with the public interest."

It was a fighting speech with patriotism as the theme and through it ran a plea to defend freedom of thought in the fight against communism.

TRUCKERS PRESS FOR MORE RAILROAD TAXES

Harrisburg (AP)—The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association
suggested to local municipalities
in the state today they can "collect millions in new tax money by taxing real estate owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad."

The truck association has backed legislation to increase the weight load of trucks from 45,000
to 60,000 pounds. The railroad has opposed it. The 1951 session of the Assembly passed the bill
but Gov. John S. Fine vetoed it.

State College Loyalty Board Declines to Say Publications Official Is 'Not Subversive'

State College, Pa. (AP)—A loyalty review board declined unanimously today to certify as "not subversive" an employee of the Pennsylvania State College who refused to take the loyalty oath.

The board, set up by the college administration, reached its decision after considering testimony
taken at a hearing last night in the case of Wendell Scott MacRae,
publications production manager
for the Department of Public Information.

College officials said MacRae
was the only one of 3,000 Penn State employees who refused to take the oath.

MacRae challenged the constitutionality of the loyalty oath law
and said he was considering court action. The law provides that any public employee refusing to take the oath shall be dismissed within 60 days.

"The board decided unanimously
that it lacked evidence essential to certify that Mr. MacRae was not subversive and has so notified
him," the board said in a statement.

The board's report will be submitted tomorrow to Dr. Milton S.
Eisenhower, Penn State president, who was absent from the city today.

Under the loyalty oath law, Dr.
Eisenhower must certify to Gov.
John S. Fine by Monday, Sept. 1,
that all college employees have complied with the law.

MacRae told the board at a public hearing last night that he believed Pennsylvania's loyalty oath-law is "unconstitutional" and therefore had refused to submit to an oath at the college.

"As a member of the United States Marine Corps I took the Marine oath to defend the United States and I believe that oath to be binding," MacRae declared.

Administering the oath stemmed from a 1951 state law requiring all commonwealth, county and municipal workers to swear they are not subversives and to uphold the federal and state constitutions.

In the case of state-aided colleges like Penn State certification of employees was left up to the college president, who is responsible to Pennsylvania's governor.

MacRae was the only Penn State employee refusing to take the oath. However, he was informed
he could be certified by demonstrating his loyalty to the state and nation at a hearing before the board of review.

At a hearing, with some 100 persons present, MacRae took the stand that under the United States Constitution it was up to the board to prove him subversive
and that he could not be forced to sign a loyalty oath to keep his job.

Air Force Launches Probe of 'Mistake Shooting' in Gulf

By HAGOLD FARR
Elgin Air Force Base, Fla. (AP)—
Two exhausted airmen slept late today as the Air Force conducted an inquiry into the accident that sent them and six other B-17 crew members plunging into the Gulf of Mexico, the target of a new-type jet fighter.

Sgt. Charles D. Jones, 31, of Meriden, Miss., and A2C Peter R.
Rosing, 22, of Ingleside, Ill., the only known survivors of the crash
and a 24-hour battle with stormy gulf waters, were treated in the Elgin Air Force Base Hospital for exhaustion and exposure.

An intensive Air Force, Navy,
and Coast Guard search continued
for the other six crew members of the B17 bomber shot down by accident by an automatically controlled F86D jet fighter.

Col. Arthur R. Deboit, 29, of Columbus, O., pilot of the jet, was being questioned by an Air Force
board of inquiry making "an intensive investigation" into the accident.

Col. Deboit was project officer for the F86D test project. It was his job to determine if the F86D was suitable for combat. A veteran flyer, Col. Deboit was described by the Air Force as "an exceptional officer."

Before the two survivors were given sedatives after their grueling experience, Jones told newsmen "we never had any doubts
that we would be picked up."

He told of accidentally bumping
into Rosing while being tossed about on a life raft by high waves
in the gulf. He said he reached out and helped Rosing, who was in a Mae West jacket, aboard the raft, which had been dropped by a search plane.

nes Henderson, a native of Daingerfield, Tex., today was named

of the Economic Stabilization Agency, succeeds Tighe E. Woods.
Woods was moved up yesterday
from the rent post to head of the Office of Price Stabilization.

Both the Henderson and Woods
appointments are effective Monday. Woods succeeds Ellis G. Ar-nall, former Georgia governor, as price chief.

Arnall plans to leave Washington, probably Friday, to resume his law practice and insurance company connections in Atlanta and Newman, Ga.

MISSISSIPPI'S RANKIN BEATEN BY ABERNETHY

Jackson, Miss. (AP)—Rep. John
Rankin, the last of Mississippi's old-school white supremacists and denouncer of Yankees, has lost his seat to his former colleague Rep.
Thomas Abernethy.

Rankin and Abernethy were opponents because the State Legislature combined their districts last April to eliminate a congressional seat lost in the 1950 census.

Rankin conceded defeat early today after unofficial returns from 341 of the district's 358 precincts
in yesterday's state Democratic primary showed:

Abernethy, 26,903.
Rankin, 20,568.

The 49-year-old Abernethy was respected about detroning the 70-
year-old dean of the Mississippi congressional delegation, who was seeking his 17th term in the House of Representatives.

Govt. Takes Copper And Aluminum Off The Critical List

Washington (AP)—The government took copper and aluminum off its critical list today and indicated an improving metal supply situation may permit a big boost
in military and civilian production
next year.

The Defense Production Administration forecast a better supply
of steel, copper and aluminum in early 1953.

Copper particularly has become more plentiful, partly because not so much of it was used by manufacturers during the steel strike.

DPA Administrator Henry M.
Fowler reportedly has advised the Defense Department that more materials can be expected by next April, or earlier. While not suggesting increased military production, he has told the military men
they can schedule greater arms
production if they wish to do so.

Yesterday, the National Production Authority told the construction industry it can expect considerably greater quantities of materials by next April, or perhaps as early as next Jan. 1 for private building.

Representing First church will be Rev. Charles B. Kinney and Harold Farrell; for Bethel, Rev.
Roger D. Morey and Carl Ander-
egg; and for Salem parish, Rev.
Francis Fehlman and Carl Jones.
Additional members from all three congregations will attend various
of the four-day sessions.

Committee meetings are the preliminary business for today,
with an evening service addressed
by Rev. Dr. David T. Gregory, of Pittsburgh, bishop of the East Central Area. He has announced his topic as "Are We Ready to Accept Christ's Call?"

The conference sessions will open officially tomorrow morning with a service of Holy Communion. One will be the annual report of the
of the first items on the agenda
conference superintendent, Dr. S.
Paul Weaver, Jamestown, his 18th
in that important office.

Among items of local interest on the Thursday schedule will be the report of the nominating committee during the afternoon, presented by Rev. Byron Berry of Venango, and formerly of Warren.
Rev. Francis Fehlman, Warren, is Conference Youth Fellowship
treasurer and will be giving his report, also offering the scripture
and prayer tomorrow afternoon.
Choir members of Warren's First church will have the special music
tomorrow evening.

On Friday, Rev. C. B. Kinney,
First church pastor, will open the afternoon session with prayer and,
in the evening, Salem choir members will provide the music. Rev.
Morey, from Bethel church, will have the scripture reading on Sunday afternoon when the two o'clock service is convened.

Among others presenting reports will be Rev. and Mrs. Harold Lindquist, Youngville, who are young people's and children's directors, respectively, for the conference. Rev. Lindquist is also executive secretary of the board of foreign missions and will have a report on that work.

Sessions continue through Sunday afternoon, when the report of the stationing committee will be the final order of business. It is understood from conference officials there is little likelihood of pastoral changes in Warren and immediate vicinity.

TWO DECLARE SCRIPT CAME FROM RED PEN

Washington (AP)—A Senate subcommittee report said today that pro-Communist script writers are spreading "subtle" propaganda
over the nation's radio and television airwaves.

"The thing is subtle," the report
of the Senate internal security
sub-committee quoted script writer Ruth Adams Knight as testifying at closed door hearings.

In question-and-answer testimony quoted by the subcommittee
Miss Knight and Welbourn E. Kelley denounced Ira Marion, a one-time script writer for Voice of America anti-Communist propaganda broadcasts beamed to Israel. Both swore in private life
Marion is an identifiable pro-Communist.

The subcommittee in its own findings, however, treated the Voice broadcasts cautiously. It said simply that members of the Radio Writers Guild, of which Marion is a former president,
"write for the Voice of America and the United Nations radio section," and that the guild "is controlled by the pro-Communist faction."

In New York, the Radio Writers
Guild, part of the Authors League
of America, issued a statement saying it "has never aligned itself with or supported any Communist or pro-Communist organization." The guild added that its officers, in compliance with the Taft-Hartley Act, signed non-Communist affidavits.

At the same time, Kelley released through the guild a copy of a letter he sent Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.), the subcommittee chairman. Kelley said not all his statements before the group were published today, including "the premise on which my testimony was given."

Kelley said he used the term
"pro-Communist" only at the request of the subcommittee's counsel, "who indicated that all of my testimony would remain in confidence." Kelley added:

"I respectfully ask that the statements made by me which somehow were omitted from the records now be made a part of that record—namely, that I cannot say of my own knowledge that any member of the guild is a Communist."

Good for all cars, but... Best for 9 out of 10* all year 'round Esso Extra Gasoline

Many motorists believe that all good gasolines are generally pretty much alike. But here are the facts as proved by industry-accepted road and laboratory tests!

Esso Extra gives you a remarkable combination of qualities that will improve the all-year, all-around performance of 9 out of 10 cars on the road.

We believe a trial will prove to you Esso Extra delivers results no other gasoline can. It gives you full power, long mileage, high anti-knock, quick starting, fast engine warm-up, and protection against vapor-lock stalling.

And while you're at your Esso Dealer's, there's certainly no better time to let him give your car a complete lubrication and careful check-up for the hot weather driving you'll be doing.

*Esso Extra Gasoline is good for ALL cars, but in 9 out of 10 it will give better all-around performance all year 'round than any other gasoline. Only a car with an engine that's poorly adjusted, badly worn, or one with unusual compression characteristics may be unable to use fully the many extra qualities of this great gasoline. MANY GUILTY PLEAS

Ten persons entered guilty pleas in Erie County Court before Judge Burton Laub on Saturday rather than have their cases heard by the September grand jury which convened at the courthouse this morning.

WRIST FRACTURED

Leland Wilcox, 12, of Youngsville, was given emergency treatment at Warren General Hospital yesterday for a fracture of the right wrist, sustained when he fell from a swing at his home. He was discharged after treatment.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

A 19-year-old Holyoke, Mass. girl, despondent over an argument with a Union City man, Sunday night attempted suicide with a large dose of a pain killing drug. Shortly afterwards she was rushed to the Union City hospital and given emergency treatment.

STEPS ON NAIL

Corry Journal: Jacqueline Woodward, Columbus, R. D. 1, was taken to the Corry Memorial Hospital Sunday for treatment of a puncture wound of the right foot sustained when she stepped on a nail while playing in the barn at her farm home. After treatment she was released.

GAIN PAROLE

According to the Corry Journal, Allen A. Henry and Foster Meris Henry, both of Youngsville, have been paroled from prison terms they were serving for the theft of an automobile belonging to Merton Fitch, of Corry. Their parole applications were among 10 which were acted upon favorably by the parole board.

DOESN'T WANT TO BE COLD

Corry Journal: Arthur Hawkins of nearby Elgin apparently figures it's going to be "a cold, cold winter." Hawkins pleaded guilty when arraigned Saturday before Alderman M. S. Cobbett on a charge of larceny. Specifically, Hawkins is charged with taking eight cords of fire wood from Charles Van Epps of Union City. State Police picked up Hawkins Saturday and, under questioning, he admitted the theft. In default of $500 bond set at the arraignment, he was taken to Erie County jail and will be returned here for a full hearing at 6 p. m. today.

BROWN FARM AUCTION

All dairy and beef cattle and farm machinery of the historic John Brown Farm at New Richmond will go on the auction block next Wednesday at 1 p. m. Eric Pratt, curator of the John Brown Museum and caretaker of the farm property, said the sale was ordered by Mrs. Charles W. Olsen, wife of the Chicago physician who owns the property. Dr. Olsen remains in critical condition at Evangelical Hospital, Chicago, where he was taken during the last week in July after he was struck by a car near his home. The 62-year-old physician sustained a fractured skull, fractured right leg, and other injuries, and has never fully recovered consciousness since the accident. Mr. Pratt has been informed. At present, Mr. Olsen reportedly has not definitely decided whether the family will retain ownership of the John Brown Farm property. Mr. Pratt said he is planning to remain in his post at least until Nov. 1 and will keep the museum open to summer and fall visitors.

TO WITHDRAW TRAINS

The announcement by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad that the two night trains operating between Pittsburgh and Buffalo will be withdrawn on September 21 is creating considerable concern along the division, because it means that the mail service for the Mt. Jewett, Bradford, DuBois, Ridgway and other towns will be practically cut in half unless some suitable substitute is made. There is widespread consternation among business concerns who depend upon the mails for much of their business with other towns from Buffalo to Pittsburgh. Some point out that discontinuance of the mail service would cause a delay of twelve hours in delivery to and from those points and the result would be a serious disorganization of their businesses. Punxsutawney has asked the district superintendent of railway mail service, to provide a star route mail service on a schedule and route approximating those provided by the night flyers.

ATTENTION

All members of Carpenters and Joiners Local No. 1014 are requested to be present at a special meeting to be held at Union Hall, Wed. Aug. 27, 1952 at 8 o'clock. Pres. Joe Littlefield Aug. 27-19

Centenarian at Tidioute To Receive Unusual Honor

Mrs. Eleanor Gillfillan, born near Kittanning in Armstrong county on August 28, 1852, and oldest resident of the community of Tidioute, attributes her long life to hard work and helping others.

She has often told her friends that, as a young girl, she worked in what is now the Hotel Tidioute and was on the job before daylight until long after dark—doing part of the cooking, all of the dining room work, washing and ironing, chambermaid duty, and much of the general cleaning—all for 50 cents a week.

A member of the G.A.R. Auxiliary, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver, her father having been killed in the Civil War.

When she was 16, she married William Fyles and, with their son, William, lived near Pittsburgh.

Many years later, she was married to Millard Fleming and moved to Oklahoma. Still later, they were numbered among the first migrants to Idaho, where she lived in Boise for many years. By faith a Methodist, she taught Sunday school and the Christian beliefs while living among the Mormons, but later became affiliated with the United Brethren church.

After Mr. Fleming died in Idaho, she returned to Pennsylvania and married John R. Gillfillan in Tionesta in 1924. They lived on Campbell Hill, Tidioute. Mr. Gillfillan followed the blacksmithing trade until failing health compelled his retirement. The last survivor of the Colonel George A. Cobham Post, G.A.R., in Tidioute, he held the distinction for many years of reciting the Gettysburg Address at Memorial Day services, and died in 1933 at the age of 92 years.

Mrs. Gillfillan lived alone for many years and was able to do most of her own housework until about 1939, when, because of failing eyesight, she became eligible for a blind pension. Mr. and Mrs. Rue Lynch helped out with her cooking and most of her work and, when she was bedfast for about six weeks in 1945, cared for her entirely with the aid of their daughter.

In January, 1947, she had a slight stroke and was removed to the home of Mrs. Harry Stoneburg, who has cared for her since. When, on June 8, 1949, she fell from bed and fractured her leg, she was taken to Warren General Hospital and remained there until late in July. Doctors who attended her said she was the oldest operative case in the history of the hospital.

The grand old lady has two granddaughters, Grace and Ellen Fyles, Riverside Drive, Oil City; three nieces and two nephews: Mrs. Letha Chapman Wyman, Weston, Mich.; Mildred Carriger, Cleveland, Okla.; Mrs. Nellie McKay, Irwin, Idaho; Roy Chapman, in Florida, and Dick Lynch, in Michigan.

GARLAND

Garland—Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Norman have left for their home in Palmer, Mass., after a visit with his sisters, Ida Taylor, Vivian Smith and Wave Carlson, and their families. Theodore was driving a new Cadillac.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Carlson and children, Nancy and Robert, left Wednesday for their home in Dallas, Texas, following a week's visit with the former's mother, Wave Carlson, at Youngsville, and other relatives in this vicinity.

PEACE-WITH-FREEDOM DRIVE

At long last, and high time too, an organization in the western world comes forth with a plan for peace to counter the one being peddled by the Communists.

The organization is a new one called the World Veterans Federation. When founded less than two years ago it had a membership of 8 million in six different nations, plus the International Confederation of Ex-Prisoners of War.

Member organizations in this country are AM-VETS, the Disabled American Veterans, the American Veterans Committee, and the Blinded Veterans Association.

The program of the world organization is twofold—peace with freedom, as compared to the peace with tyranny offered by the Communists, and the rehabilitation of disabled veterans.

The Federation feels that its big strength for peace lies in the fact that its members all know first hand what war is like, and also that most of its key members in various countries are war heroes whose voices will be listened to.

Federation officials emphasize it is by no means a peace-at-any-price movement, but rather peace with freedom, and only that way.

The organization has a consultative voice in the United Nations and one of its principal aims is to strengthen the UN by giving the millions of Federation members a voice in UN proceedings.

Harold Russell, the amputee veteran who is past national commander of AMVETS, represents the United States on the Federation's nine-member watchdog commission for preserving peace.

One function of the commission is to go personally to world trouble areas and report back to the United Nations and to the Federation on the situation as war veterans unencumbered by the policies and red tape of an official government fact-finding body.

Within the United Nations the Federation is pushing for a world-development authority. The purpose of the authority would be to recommend measures for relieving poverty in various parts of the world as a step towards relieving the discontent and strife which can lead to war.

Summing up Federation peace aims, one of its officials says, "We want to attract those millions of people throughout the world who sincerely want peace but who, unable to find another peace banner to rally under, have been trapped by what the Communists are offering."

An aim such as that seems commendable enough in itself. But when combined with an active and going program of concrete aid to the world's war wounded, it gains even more strength.

The United States branch of the Federation is out to raise $1 million this year for its share of the work.

MORNING MIST

The New York Times

As August slowly cools away toward autumn, dawns become misty as with a foretaste of the chill ahead. Over the ponds and streams the mist is like smoke, curling and wreathing in the sunrise air as the mysterious little currents of breeze play tag; white smoke, the insense of fading summer, which vanishes as the sun reaches higher above the horizon.

This is not the haze of high humidity which clouds the hills on a sultry mid-summer morning. This is the shimmering gauze of the changing season, the dew which washes the dust from the summer-weary leaves along the streams and keeps the valleys beyond the season's prime. This is the blown breath of autumn long before there is even a hint of frost in the air.

It comes on a morning with a clear sky and a clean horizon, a brilliant morning full of blue and green and the long shadows of sunrise. It is not a gray mist; it is white, white as daisy petals, whiter than cumulus clouds, shimmering white and so thin it shimmers silver as the sun strikes through it. It is like spider web jeweled with dew, and even less tangible. Wave a hand and there is a swirl and a quick gleam of sun in mistless air.

Indian summer will come, and the thin, far haze on the hilltops; but this is even less substantial. The haze of Indian summer will be day-long; this is morning mist, sunrise magic which vanishes even while you watch. It is a curl of shimmer, the very essence of impermanence, a swift glimpse of autumn already round the bend of the river and waiting there beyond the hills.

C'mon Now, Big Boy, Allez Oop!

Here And There

The visit of our old friend and former citizen, George T. Harris, superintendent of the Washington office of the Western Union, recalls the memorable presidential election in 1916, when The Evening Times was the only paper in the country to appear with an extra announcing the election of Woodrow Wilson, after scores of papers printed in the east and as far west as Chicago appeared with special editions announcing that Charles Evan Hughes, Republican, had been victorious.

We crawled up in the attic to bring down the "October-December" file of that year, to freshen our memory on the epic scoop, and give Harris another peep at the first page of the "extra" which carried a box containing this appreciation: "It is through the untiring efforts of Manager George Harris, of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the entire Times force that we are able to present to our readers the first complete story of the greatest Presidential election the United States has ever experienced. Manager Harris remained at his key until six o'clock this morning, handling the late election reports for the Times. Much credit is also due Mr. C. W. Linton, who handled the special wire in the Times office until nearly four o'clock."

Harris, as we stated in an item in Tuesday's issue, was manager of the Warren office of the Western Union, and as such was closely associated with the Times, substituting frequently when the regular telegrapher was unable to be on the job. A double column box on the first page of the 3:30 edition on Wednesday November 8, 1916, contained much of interest about the historic event. It said that over 1,200 telephone calls were received by the Times for information about the election results; four operators were kept busy constantly in the office, and the fact that nothing definite had been secured trebled the number of inquiries. The jam around the Times office continued long after the streets had been deserted. Fifty members of the old guard stuck to the Times-Mirror office until the extra was off the press. When the change in trend of the election count was noted about one o'clock they yelled themselves hoarse, for the President, and the cheering continued during the remainder of the night. The extra was put on the press at 5:30 o'clock, and before six a. m., Times carriers were taking it to the home of every subscriber in Warren. Fifteen hundred extra copies were sold on the street. A total of 8,000 words on the election was received in the service of the Times. Aside from the election the Times covered more than forty precincts of the county with full returns on the principal offices, and was first to give news that the city charter proposal for Warren had been defeated. The Times was the first and only paper to be circulated in Warren to give the news of Wilson's re-election to the presidency. The Jamestown Morning Post, the first morning paper to reach Warren came out with a large scarehead ribbon announcing the election of Hughes. All city papers arriving in Warren today carried the same "news!"

★ EDSON IN WASHINGTON ★

Some Government Worker Has Any Statistics You Can Name

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Outside of the three and a half million in the armed services and the half million it takes to carry the mails, more government people are employed in collecting statistics than any other one thing.

Name any kind of statistics you want and you can be sure that somebody in government has 'em. They fill filing cabinets which, if stacked one on top of another, would make another statistic. Published in book form, these statistics make handy little volumes like the 1200-page federal budget, or the 1000-page Statistical Abstract of the United States, which is published by Department of Commerce. This is one of the smaller tomes in the collection, being only an abstract.

Government statistical collections got so big that the other day the Bureau of the Budget put out a new handbook on Statistical Services of the United States. This is just a directory to help the stranger in town find his way through the statistics, but it fills a book of 78 pages.

CONGRESS has been gone from Washington for nearly a month, but the dear old Congressional Record continues to come out every now and then. The main reason for publication is to present final statistics on all laws passed by the 82nd Congress. But this provides an excuse for congressmen and senators to "extend their remarks," as it's called. This means getting reprints for reports by the lawmakers on how good they were.

Over 500 pages of this drivel have been printed since Congress adjourned. And at $250 per page, it has cost the taxpayers about $125,000 to get this in the record.

Department of Agriculture is about to publish a 950-page yearbook on the subject of insects. It will have 72 color pictures of the more important insects, with 200 other line drawings to help identify the more important bugs. There's a key on how to make a collection of them.

This new insect yearbook is the 16th in a series that was begun in 1936. Government Printing Office will sell the book for $2.50 a copy, but every congressman is given a big bunch for free distribution to his constituents.

It's one of the minor grafts which the lawmakers give themselves every year. After which somebody usually gets up and makes a speech criticizing the Department of Agriculture for giving away so much free literature.

AFTER Congress of Industrial Organizations had published its voting records of senators and congressmen during the last session—to show which had voted "right" and "wrong" on the more important issues, from the CIO point of view—U. S. Chamber of Commerce was asked if it wouldn't want to get up a list to give the other side of the picture.

Chamber officials declined, not wanting to make anybody mad. But from the CIO's tabulation of senators who voted "wrong" on every issue from its point of view, it is possible to construct a list of senators whom the employers would score as having voted "right" on the main issues. This would be that list:

Byrd of Virginia, Bennett of Utah, Bricker of Ohio, Bridges of New Hampshire, Butler of Maryland, Butler of Nebraska, Jenner of Colorado, McClellan of Arkansas, Martin of Pennsylvania, Millikin of Colorado, Schoepel of Kansas and Welker of Idaho.

Senator Taft of Ohio, usually considered the CIO's pet hate number one and the businessmen's idol, was scored as voting right on public health, public housing and the St. Lawrence seaway, wrong on 13 other major issues.

They say things are going to be better for the movies. There's a new type of shapely and sexy female stars. All the professional actors and actresses seem to look better, too, after television's convention splurge in male and female politicians. There is also a good popcorn crop.

You Get GREATER VALUE
for Your Dollar
BECAUSE OF ADVERTISING

Because Advertising

... brings you news about better products you need
... tells you where to get what you want when you want it
... makes lower prices possible through mass production and mass selling

Yet picture how little
all this costs

For instance, it costs less than 1/3¢ a dozen to advertise the big-name brand of oranges. Any other method of selling would cost the growers more and therefore raise the price. Otherwise they wouldn't use advertising.

Putnam Gathering Hears of Oldest Living Relative

Lander—One of the highlights of the 56th annual Putnam family reunion, held in the community house and attended by 50 persons, was the reading of a clipping by Mrs. Sherman Parker concerning the oldest living relative, Mrs. Lucinda Putnam Parker, 105 years old and visiting for the summer with her granddaughter, Mrs. Carl Berger, North East. Mrs. Parker made the trip by plane from Florida, where she winters with a grandson, Emmett Parker.

She remembers many incidents of bygone days and talks of seeing Abraham Lincoln when he stopped in North East while on his way to Washington to be inaugurated as president.

The business meeting, conducted by Leslie Firth, followed dinner enjoyed by the entire group. He named Myles Porter, Roy Putnam and Lloyd Wilcox as location committee for next year, with Fern Hinsdale and Ethel Webster as refreshments committee and Lynn Burgett to plan the ice cream. Officers elected were: President, Mrs. Lynn Burgett; vice president, Lloyd Wilcox; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Clair Putnam; historian, Inez Gregory.

The historian's report for the past two years showed two marriages, six births and seven deaths in 1950-51; one marriage, six births and four deaths in 1951-52.

Linda Jean Gardner, one year old, was reported the youngest member of the family.

To conclude a pleasant day, ice cream and cake were served. Members are already anticipating the next reunion, to be held at the same place on the fourth Saturday in August, 1953.

She received many nice gifts and refreshments were served by the hostesses. In attendance from Sugar Grove were Mrs. Hugh Sherrard, Mrs. Mary Dalrymple, Mrs. Clarence Sherrard, Barbara Sherrard, Mrs. Gregg Abbott, Mrs. J. E. Abbott, Mrs. Norman Abbott and Mrs. Conrad Youngberg.

Mrs. Perkins was complimented last Friday evening when Mrs. Catherine Remmy, Falconer, entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Wilson. Guests were schoolmates of the Class of 1952 of Sugar Grove-Farmington High School, of which the bride was a member. She was remembered by the group with many nice gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Font

—Roberts Studio

White glads and greens provided a simple setting in Holy Redeemer church Saturday morning, August 23, for the wedding of Mary Ann Schafer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Shafet, 9 West street extension, and Thomas A. Font, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony A. Font, Sr., 1 Nesmith street.

Father M. E. Dailey read the double ring service and celebrated the nuptial mass at 10.00 a. m. Mrs. Thomas Donnelly was at the organ and Joseph Guiffre was soloist, singing "Ave Maria", "Mother, At Your Feet Is Kneeling" and "Pans Angelicus".

Wearing chantly lace and net over satin and carrying a white orchid on a prayer book that was the bridegroom's gift, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was styled with pearl-trimmed standup collar, tiny buttons closing the fitted bodice; long, pointed sleeves, and full skirt falling into a long train. Her veil of nylon net fell fingertip length from a crown of pearls and rhinestones.

Her matron of honor, Doris Cunningham, wore orchid; Mary Ann Massa, maid of honor, was in blue green; and the bridesmaids, Loretta David of Sheffield, Phyllis Armstrong and Ethore Font of Erie, wore yellow, blue and pink respectively. Their strapless gowns were topped with short jackets having peter pan collars, half-hats were of matching material, and pastel glads fashioned their bouquets.

Completing the bridal party, Herman Nesmith was best man and ushers were John Sailor, John Bimber, Gail Schafer, with James Cronin, Cleveland, O.

Mrs. Schafer chose red accessories with a gunmetal frock and Mrs. Font was in light gray with navy, each with a corsage of red carnations.

Dinner for the bridal party and immediate families, with Father Dailey and Father William MacLoney, was served in the private dining room at the Blue and White.

A reception for 100 guests followed at the Moose Temple from one until four o'clock, the bride's table attractively done with white glads and a four-tier cake topped with miniature bridal figures. Reception music was played by a trio.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Amos and son, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Font, Jr., Cleveland; Mrs. Wilson Smith and daughter, Judy, Swarthmore.

For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride chose a dark green suit, complemented

WIFE NEGLECTS PUTTING SELF IN HUSBAND'S SHOES

★ RUTH MILLETT ★

To Receive Praise for Work Do Things People Want Done

SHE thinks her husband is unreasonable and unappreciative because he overlooks all she does for his comfort and happiness and keeps harping on a few things she neglects to do.

Because that isn't an unusual complaint of wives, it might be well for them to try to look at the situation from their husband's point of view.

Susan spends a good bit of time doing something for her husband that he hasn't asked her to do. She is pleased with the project and expects him to give her a verbal pat on the back for her work.

But instead when John gets home he doesn't even notice the completed job but asks: "Did you do such-and-such?" naming something he had asked Susan to do before he got left in the morning.

When Susan confesses she forgot all about it, John blows up and Susan is convinced she is married to an unreasonable man who doesn't appreciate anything she does.

THAT'S how it looks to Susan when she sees the situation only from her point of view.

But if she would try looking at it from her husband's side she would get a different slant on the matter.

Even though she has spent time and thought and energy doing something for him she thought he would appreciate, she neglected to do the one thing he specifically asked her to do.

The wise wife puts first the things she knows her husband considers important and will appreciate having her do for him instead of spending her time and energy doing things she just thinks he ought to appreciate.

If more wives worked on that theory there would be fewer wives complaining that all their husbands do is criticize and find fault.

If you want appreciation it's smart to do the things you know will be appreciated, a simple fact some wives seem to completely overlook.

DuPont Will Shows $75,000,000 Estate Left to Relatives

Philadelphia (AP)—The late Lamont du Pont, onetime head of the Du Pont industrial organization, left an estate estimated to be worth $75 million in personal property and $325,000 in real estate. He died last July 24.

An affidavit filed yesterday in the register of wills office here set the estimates. It was filed by the executor of the estate, the Wilmington Trust Co. and Du Pont's widow, Margaret F. Du Pont. Attached to the affidavit was a copy of Du Pont's will. The will itself was filed in Wilmington, Del.

This document creates for the widow a marital trust made up of approximately 50 per cent of his adjusted gross estate and gives to her the power of appointment of the beneficiary at his death.

Also left to Mrs. Du Pont in the will are all of Lamont's personal and household effects.

FURTHER INFORMATION ON "FLYING PASTOR"

Further local identification has been made of the "flying pastor" mentioned in an Associated Press dispatch published in these columns on Monday. The Rev. William Francis Shoup, 62 year old Maryland minister, was born in Tionesta, Forest county, and was a cousin of Miss Alice Shawkey, Rankin street, Warren.

Called "the flying pastor of Barnesville, Md.," Rev. Shoup lived in Wheaton, Md., and commuted by plane to his parish in Barnesville. He was a licensed pilot and chaplain of the Frederick, Md., unit of the Civil Air Patrol.

He had held pastorates at Aldenville, Pa., in Adams, N. Y., and at Liberty, N. Y., before going to Maryland.

Thousands Lose Hunting Licenses

The Pennsylvania Game Commission and judges of courts of Quarter Session have revoked the hunting and trapping privileges of 894 persons since October, 1951. The total number of licenses revoked in Pennsylvania to date totals 11,875.

Under the provisions of the Game Law any person who has, through the revocation procedure, been denied the right to hunt or trap wild birds or wild animals in the Commonwealth may not legally secure a hunting license in his own or an assumed name prior to the termination of his revocation period. Either action would subject him to a penalty of $40. Hunting or trapping during the period a revocation is in effect, in addition to carrying a penalty of $40 per day, also results in an extension of the original revocation period.

Regardless of the fact a person may have a lawful hunting license at the time he is notified his hunting and trapping privileges have been suspended, he may not legally hunt or trap any wild bird or animal any place in the Commonwealth during the period his license is denied.

An involuntary manslaughter charge against George O. Feltenberger Jr., of Meadville was thrown out in a ruling handed down yesterday by Alderman S. G. MacTarnaghan of Meadville. Ruling on a July 15 hearing, the alderman allowed a defense motion to dismiss Feltenberger for lack of evidence. DREDGING WORK

Dredging work in the Brokenstraw creek adjacent to lands of the Rouse farm at Youngsville is under way, county commissioners said this morning. As a consequence, some of the fields bordering the stream have eroded. The work will take several days, they said.

Fund For Memorial Field Wading Pool's Growing Rapidly

The committee responsible for arranging several recent events to raise funds for a wading pool at War Memorial playground reports today its efforts to date have brought in a total of $326.10. Of this amount, $109 was realized from the ice cream social, $7.10 was raised through admissions for Neighborhood Circus, and $210 was in special gifts from local business establishments and interested individuals. Since a total of $400 will be necessary for carrying out the pool project, sponsors will attempt to raise the balance needed by holding a scrap drive on Saturday of this week in the sixth and eighth wards of town. The collection as planned will include rags, papers, magazines, scrap metal—in fact, all kinds of scrap—and the cooperation of every householder in these two wards is earnestly solicited in order that the drive may prove successful. Donations of personal effort, materials for the pool and the benefit affairs, as well as cash gifts, have been received by the committee from the following and are gratefully acknowledged by the sponsors: Nelson and Ellberg, excavation work; Smith and Horton, silverware; Anderson, Mostert and Ideal bakeries, sheet cakes for the social; Charles Farrell, Earl Kempf, Grace Stearns, A. LANDMARK IN HISTORY

1734. OLD STATE HOUSE, Independence Hall, Philadelphia

ON JULY 4, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was signed in this building. It sets a pattern for self-government which would be followed by many nations throughout the civilized world.

This venerable edifice was then called the State House and the Declaration was signed in the East Room, henceforth, "Independence Hall." On the outside west wall, there was a large town clock. There was no clock in the wooden steeple, surmounting the building. This steeple, being considered unsound, was later removed. The vacant place was roofed over and topped by a steeple, just large enough to accommodate the bell.

The old State House, completed in 1734, was started in 1729, and co-incidentally, just a century later, 1829, the present steeple, a replica of the original, with clock faces added, was erected.

TUNING UP—Wide-eyed Diana Pelsaer, foreground, is wondering if her lollypop would be good for strumming that guitar in New York. Her little partner, Donna Barghesi, is also working to get the instrument into some sort of condition, but it may not be one that will meet with the owner's approval.

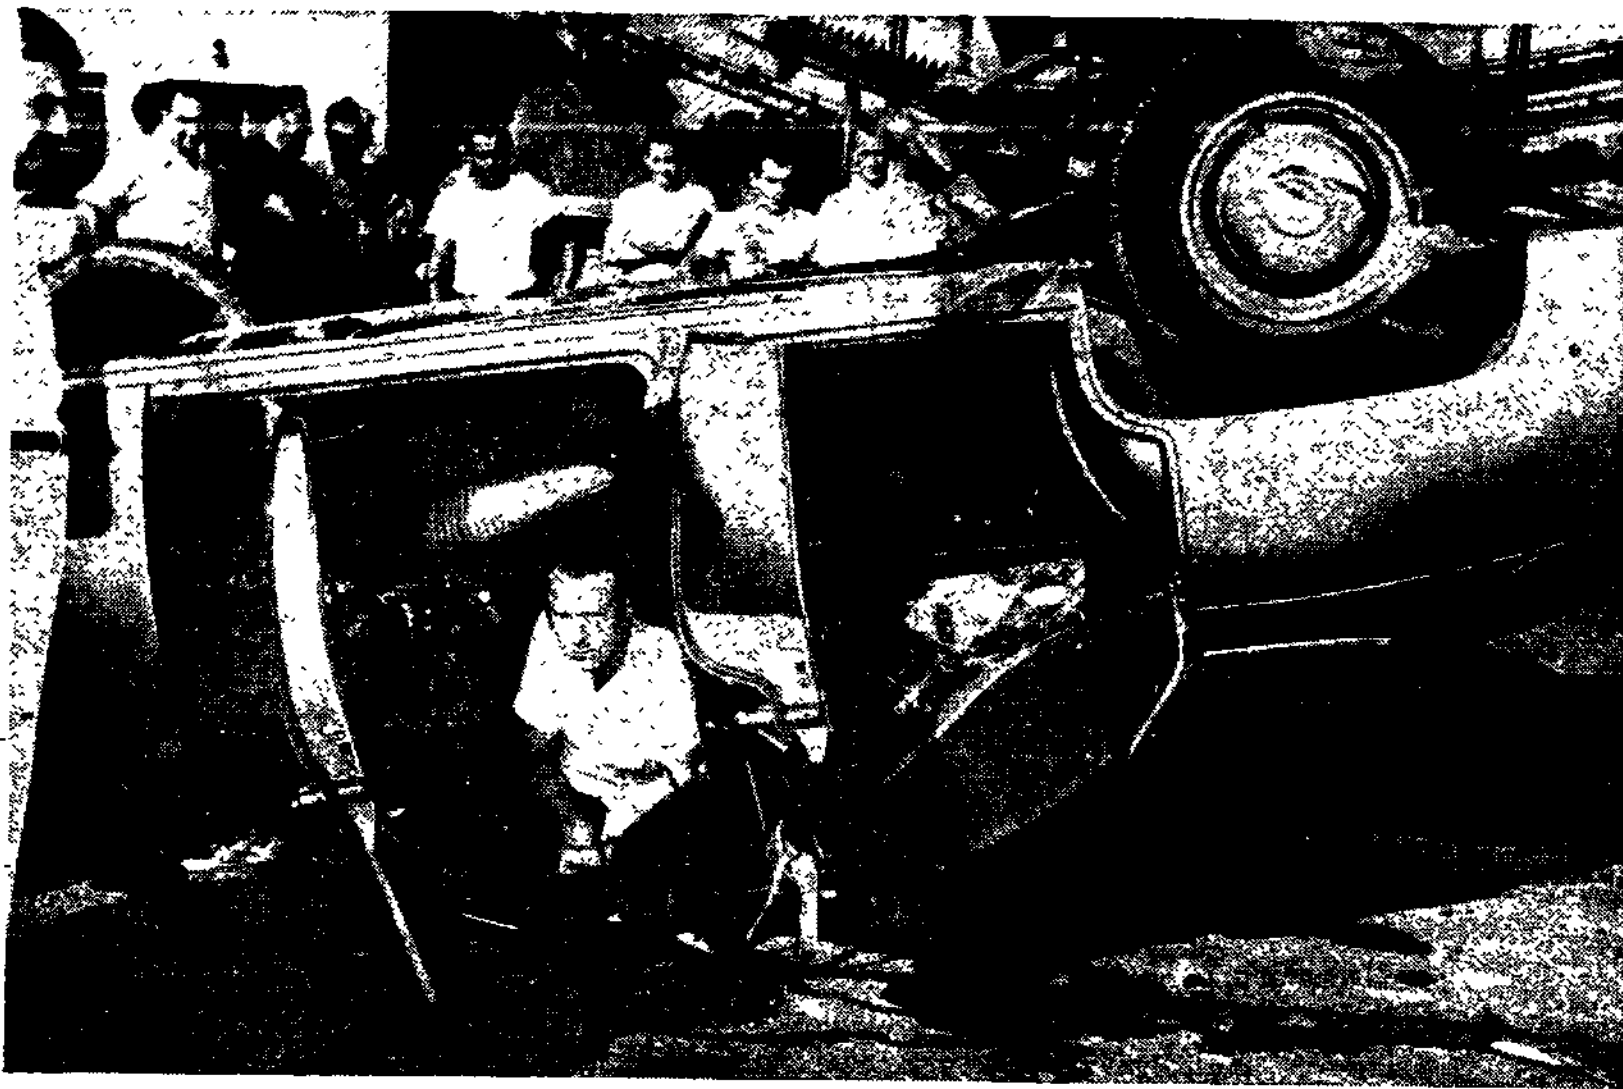

HE HAS HOPES—After building model airplanes since he was 12, Ed Rogers, of Weybridge, Surrey, England, is working on what he hopes will be his masterpiece. The plane model, five feet long and powered by tiny twin engines, has a 10-foot wing span. It is made of balsa wood and silk and Rogers expects it to fly to 20,000 feet and travel 300 miles. He's also hoping it will stay aloft until it has broken the record of six hours and 23 minutes which is held by Russia.

TALE OF THREE KITTIES—Some kittens in Tokyo, Japan, were lapping up a bowl of milk as the cameraman got this shot of their long, short and medium-sized tails. No reason was offered for the variation in tail size and, while it seems unlikely that the felines are wearing them to suit their own style taste, you can't tell what even lady cats may do.

AROUND THE WORLD

ONE OF FOUR—Herbert Kirschenbaum, of Brooklyn, lies in his overturned auto waiting assistance after his car was involved in a four-vehicle crash at Mahway, N. J. Two persons were injured and admitted to a hospital when a truck, cut off by a car coming out of a side road, overturned and smashed into three cars moving in the opposite direction.

A DIVIDED CITY
ALL MIXED UP—On the Franco-German border is the small town of Kehl am Rhine, lesser known than Berlin. After World War I, it was part of France but reverted to Germany in 1930. In 1945, the French occupied it, and split the town of 2500 down the middle. All signs, such as the one above, pointing to Germany, are printed in both languages. Houses and sidewalks are empty on the French side of the barricade, left in top photo, while some passers-by, and evidence of reconstruction, are visible on the German side. In an odd twist, a German war memorial celebrating the German victory in the Franco-Prussian war of 1873, stands on the French side of the town, below. But in 1953, the memorial site will again be a part of Germany.

IT'S GOT EVERYTHING!—A Japanese baby in Tokyo is starting out with his mother on a shopping tour in an ingenious carriage-tricycle put together by his economy-minded father. If mama gets weary of pushing it, the baby can pedal a while, and when he gets larger, the bars will come off and he'll have a tricycle. Right now, he has his hands full trying to steer and keep the vehicle in a straight line.

IT'S A PROBLEM—After a flight from Rome to New York, Lalique, a French poodle, is rather worried as she awaits a check by customs. High over the Atlantic, Lalique became a mother—and it's now an international problem. She's wondering if her pup is French, like most poodles, or Italian, the land of departure. It was born near Ireland, so is it Irish or American where it lives?

THE LOW-DOWN—French actress Simone Simon looks just a bit skeptical of what she's hearing from a gentleman on the Italian island of Capri. The curvaceous star was vacationing at the swank restaurant-lub owned by British entertainer Gracie Fields, who is now also a business woman.

CAT IN THE BAG—In Paris, designer Jacques Heim puts a "pet" pocket, large enough to hold a Peking or a pussycat, in the luxurious blue silk side drapery of his black and white velvet hostess gown. The unusual sash is looped over the belt and can be removed in favor of other accessories.

OUT OF PLACE—As she tries to hang a day's wash in her backyard in Richfield, Minn., Mrs. C. E. Wilson is encountering something unexpected. A fast-growing squash has crept up the clothesline pole and out onto the line where it has made itself as much at home as the laundry.

Already a bright spot on Route 62 Warren-Jamestown Road at Venturietown, the new Dairy Queen store will have its formal opening tomorrow from 4 to 10 p. m. with music by Mrs. Dorothy Bagstrom and her orchestra from 8 until 11 p. m.

Constructed by Ludwig Peterson, local contractor, the Dairy Queen store was built under specifications provided by the parent organization. Robert Crosssett, owner of the property, has leased it to Mr. and Mrs. George L. Biehls of Ridgway, who are owners of the business. Mr. and Mrs. Biehls have moved to Warren and are residing at 105 Terrace street. Mr. Biehls was formerly in the restaurant business at Mt. Jewett. Mrs. Biehls is the former Mary Kathryn Lion of St. Marys.

The new establishment will manufacture and sell the dairy products for which Dairy Queen is famous throughout this section of the country. Carry-out packages in quarts and pints, fresh daily, will be available. The building is modern in every respect.

Earl Pyeatt of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania district manager for Dairy Queen, has been here to help Mr. and Mrs. Biehls in setting up the business and will be here for the opening.

Mr. and Mrs. Biehls said today that visitors who call at the new Dairy Queen store between 4 and 10 p. m. on the opening day will be asked to enjoy a free sundae. Announcement is made that store hours will be from noon until midnight each day.

Do you believe in signs?

THERE are a lot of signs to guide you to the best buy in automobiles. Popularity is a good sign. It means that a lot of people have tried a car and found it good. So it's important to know that Buick is today—and has been since 1938—the most popular car outside the "low-priced three."

Room, comfort, power, ride are good signs. So it's important to know that you can pay hundreds of dollars more and not beat the room and comfort you get in a Buick SPECIAL. Nor, at the price, can you match its power. And only Buick gives you a real million dollar ride.

Doesn't all this give you a hint? Doesn't it suggest that you ought to try out a Buick—sample its Fireball 8 Engine—find out how it takes you over the road—feel the sure control that is yours on curves—discover its "big car" room and smoothness?

Do that—and look at the dollars on the price tag—and we know what you'll find out: If you can afford a new car, you can own a Buick—and boy, what fun that will be!

WESTPORT LANDING
By Homer Hatten

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter Eight
It was midmorning of the second day after the fire when the Natchez docked at St. Louis. The voyage had provided an interlude that allowed Sally to call up her resources and plan constructively for the uncertain days ahead. All her material resources were gone—all except the slender store of Dixie notes and the uncertain promise of Meisendorff's scribbled map. It was little enough, but she was coldly determined to exploit it to the uttermost limits of her capacity.

Andre and Blaine had planned to meet in St. Louis and travel westward together. There was no reason why she could not meet Blaine and travel with him, at least as far as Westport Landing. Perhaps the long trail to Santa Fe would be something she could not attempt, but that was a question that could be answered at Westport. In the meantime, she had to locate Blaine and tell him of Andre's death.

Her chin high, she walked down the swaying stage plank and turned her footsteps toward the business district of St. Louis.

LESS than an hour after the tumult of the Natchez docking had begun, the Bell of the West, three days out of Cincinnati, nosed into the landing, its rails almost rubbing those of the Natchez.

Standing at the rail of the ship, scanning the diam of the levee below, was a tall young man with restless eyes. His name was Clay Bennett Farrar, and he wasn't a bad man to see—well over six feet, half along in his twenties, a black-eyed, Indian-haired man with broad shoulders and narrow horseman's hips, dressed in blue broadcloth coat and trousers, with the white silk of his shirt surmounted by a black satin stock. He was a hard man, arrogant, half cruel, entirely self-sufficient; typical of the Kentucky horse country from which he came, smoothed and hardened by numerous horse-trading trips from New Orleans to St. Peter's River. Those who knew him found him careless yet scrupulously courteous in speech, living ever on the ragged edge that lay between inbred gentility on the one hand and overwhelming debts and disaster on the other; a man of violent and almost ungovernable temper, welcoming a glass or a lass, a fight or a frolic, a brawl or a bawd, with equal pleasure.

Now, as he probed the jostling, noisy crowd below, his eyes searched out the man he sought, and he waved an arm in greeting. Apparently the gentleman on the levee had picked Clay out from the crowds at the ship's rail some moments before, for his high steeple hat was already lifted in dignified greeting.

As the man reached the hat on his gray head, Clay reflected that Major Elderson was getting old. And so he was, as men counted age on the frontier, for he was in his early fifties. For more than thirty years he had handled and sold that part of the produce of the Farrar plantations that had found its way north, and it would have been an awfully definite affront if he had failed to welcome a member of the Farrar family who was bringing horses to St. Louis for the spring race meeting.

The stage planks clashed against the levee, and Clay, turning, saw with satisfaction that his men Henry and Sam, trained in a dozen river ports, were first at the rail. Clay knew that they could be trusted to get the race horses ashore safely. Sweet Nancy was docile and ready to find her way through another city; the two black, short-nosed racing horses danced restlessly behind her, but Henry and Sam could handle them.

He swung his leg across Sweet Nancy, turned in the saddle to make sure black Sam and Henry held the two racers firmly by the halters, and rode down the swaying, dipping stage plank into the city that was the beginning of the West.

Major Elderson had mounted his own bay, and now he met him with a welcoming handclasp and a hurried question.

"Glad to see you, Clay. Can you get those horses out of here before they tear the levee to pieces?"

Clay grinned at him. That was no question to ask a horseman from Kentucky.

They crossed Fourth Street and swung left. Abruptly the Major reined up in dismay while the dark, headstrong Kentucky horses behind him danced sideways across the street in sudden panic, momentarily threatening to tear the front out of every building nearby and maim every pedestrian who was unlucky enough to be in the street.

Sam and Henry were yelling. "Fore God, Mistah Clay, get us through heah! Ain't no man can hol' these hosses!"

On the narrow sidewalk Sally Dupre shrank back into a doorway, startled out of her thoughts by the whirlwind of excitement and violence that had suddenly turned the quiet street into bedlam. From his place at the rear of the column Clay saw his movement stopped, his blacks fighting to hold the horses that were to wear the Farrar colors, his factor, Major Elderson, ingloriously halted at a cross street in an American city. The hot tide of rage—that rage that was so often to betray him and to save him—swung up and engulfed him as he spurred forward, his face black with anger.

One of the maddened black stallions had dragged Sam across the street, and Clay reached them the great horse reared high in the air, his front hoofs lashing out like mailed clubs. He faced the doorway where Sally stood, her arms thrown up to shield her face, and even as Clay urged Sweet Nancy forward, the stallion's body lunged forward in an attack that could only mean certain death.

There was no time to weigh the risks and consequences. There was only time for Clay to send Sweet Nancy at full gallop into the path of the descending stallion. He felt the mare stagger as the stallion's body fell across her, had a blurred impression of flashing hoofs, and then he was battering the stallion's eyes and nose with the butt of his riding crop. He felt, rather than saw, the black terror whirl away, Sam still clinging to the halter strap. He glanced at Sally's crumpled body in the doorway, saw that two men were running forward to help her, and spurred Sweet Nancy forward again toward where Major Elderson waited helplessly at the cross

Chapter Nine
AHEAD, the traffic from the levee had fallen into an almost hopeless tangle. Clay Street was impassable, a rough hubbub of dark Mexican horsemen at every crossing, alert implacable, facing each cross street with lowered lances and with rifles across their saddles. Along these streets Francisco de Vaca's ox carts were carrying more than a quarter of a million dollars in gold and silver to the ancient Benoit banking house.

A long line of wagons moved down the street—a line attended by armed vaqueros from Sonora. There were oxen in the traces, and to back the armed men who faced each cross street, a horde of Mexican guards rode beside each wagon.

Clay spurred in beside Major Elderson, hot and high in the saddle, his voice a rough hubbub that commanded immediate attention. "My horses are beating their brains out back there! What kind of a half-witted parade's going on here? Let's put these horses through—and let's do it now!"

Elderson laid a restraining hand on his arm. "Hold it," he said warningly. "That's the Vaca train from Mexico. They don't trust their own banks or currency too much, so they bring their gold and silver here. There's Don Francisco himself."

He was riding to the left of one of the wagons, a tall, spare-boned, knife-tipped grandee with the aura of power about his shoulders. Behind him, bred in his bone and his blood, was the age-old tradition of the Spanish colonial hacendados with their absolute power of life and death. Death rode with him—death that was unmistakable and implicit in the long lances and ready guns of the vaqueros beside him.

On the far side of the caravan, and about two wagons behind, rode his son, Don Pedro de Vaca, ripe in the wisdom of savage Indian wars and hard-lipped border trading, welcomed for himself as well as for his name at any campfire between Westport and Chihuahua.

"I don't care if it's the devil himself," Clay said shortly. "I'm taking those horses through, and the man who gets in my way can look out for himself."

He touched Sweet Nancy with the spurs and she lunged forward, striking the shoulder of the horse that carried the vaquero blocking the passage before them. The little Mexican pony stumbled, knocked backward and off balance by the rider for the startled Mexican to bring his long, red-pennoned lance into play, and before he could lift the rifle that lay across his saddle the needle-tipped, three-sided epée that had been hidden in Clay's sword cane was out, its point a perilous inch short of his throat.

IN an instant the street was thrown into utter confusion. The wagons were halted, their guards a harsh, menacing cordon around each one. Half a dozen riders had detached themselves from the column and raced forward to their comrade's aid, while young Pedro de Vaca, his face harsh with anger, spurred across the cobblestones and through the confusion until he was only an arm's length from Clay, his pistol ready in his hand and the threat of sudden death in his face.

"What is this, señor?" he demanded harshly. "Do you think you can take the gold and silver in these wagons from between the fingers of my men?"

Clay's own eyes were narrow slits and his mouth was a hard line of fury and determination. "I don't give a good damn about your gold and silver," he growled.

Intra-Squad Game At War Memorial Field Labor Day Will Reveal Team Strength

Warren High Appears to Have Good Backfield Material As Practice Sessions Continue

Although the Warren High school football squad is well into second week of pre-season action, it is still too early for Coach Fred Bell to make any announcement of who the stringers will be in the 1952 campaign.

Working in his role for the first time here in Warren, Bell not only has the task of selecting boys' positions, but first has to familiarize himself with them, having seen them only once in the City game last fall.

Of course the nucleus for the team is made up of letter-winners. Coach Bell and fullback Toby Eck. Newcomers, most of whom were reserve ball last year, showing up fine in the backfield are Mohny, Eugene Morris,

Jim Tridico, Don Mahaffey and Ed Heffernan.

Tridico and Mohny are making a strong bid for the tailback position, while Heffernan is looking good at full and Morris at quarter. Shea is by far the heaviest back that Coach Bell has, going around 175 pounds.

In the line Bell's mainstay of course, is Hegerty at end, with Tom Larson, the big boy in the center of the 165-pound average line, hitting about 175. Working hard for an end berth is Bill Hawthorne. Other linemen looking good are Del Sedan, a guard, and Bob Dickerson.

Injuries have temporarily taken two of the Dragon line bidders out, Larry Steele and Don Cummings.

While most of the Section Two team coaches are finding it hard to locate good backfield material, the situation seems reversed in Warren.

What the Dragons will have to offer in their coming nine-game slate will be easier to figure following the Intra Squad game to be played on War Memorial Field Labor Day Monday. Monday's games are scheduled as follows: 1:00—Freshmen vs Sophomores; 1:30—Sophomores vs Juniors; and 2:30—the Blues vs the Whites.

Admission for the games will be 25 cents, as has been the custom in the past.

New York Giants Defeat Pirates, 14-7

Pittsburgh P—The New York Giants overwhelmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 14-7, last night to stay 10½ games back of league leading Brooklyn and increase their second place margin to one full game over St. Louis.

Despite the impressiveness of their win, the Giants had only a one-run lead until the eighth inning when they exploded for six runs.

Hoyt Wilhelm, third of four Giant pitchers, picked up his 12th win against only three losses. Murry Dickson was charged with his 18th defeat compared to 12 wins.

'Warren Falcon Nest' Will Be Entertained Saturday Night; Jamestown Is 3 Games Behind

Word received this morning from Ray Peebles, general manager of the Jamestown Falcons, is to the effect that Saturday night, August 30, has been set aside as "Warren Falcon Nest Night" at Jamestown.

The local "Nest", with headquarters at the Busy Bee, was established by Mr. Peebles early last spring and there are over a half hundred members in Warren. They are invited to be guests of the Falcons management at the game with Batavia in Jamestown, Saturday night.

The Hamilton Cardinals staged an amazing 6-run rally in the 9th inning against Hornell last night and went on to win in the 11th, 9-7, on rookie-of-the-year Hal Miller's two-run single.

Bobby Umfleet, named as the Pony League's outstanding 1952 player yesterday, came on in the 9th to win his second game in as many days over the Dodgers. It was his 22d victory.

The Cards' victory put them three full games in front of the Jamestown Falcons who lost to Wellsville, 9-3.

In a contest marred by seven errors, Olean dusted off the Bradford Phils, 16-5, as Jim Coates grabbed his 13th victory. Batavia defeated Corning, 6-2.

The above, credited as a contribution from a Clarendon girl, was found today in an old Warren Evening Times of Nov. 3, 1926, in a column called "Rel's Rambblings."

From the same column we extract the following: "Do you know all these pretty girls from Clarendon? Pauline Meley, Edith Flisco, Alma Templeton, Marguerite Dorsey, Alma Culbertson, Orpha Keefer, Gladys West, Eloise Hettrick, Eva Keefer, Mary Keefer, Ruth Meley, Evelyn Nelson, Hazel Kirkendall, Carin Johnson, Anna Johnson, Iris Dickerson, Sarah Sparce, Marian Sleeman, Lila Graham, Winzola Graham, Margaret Bailey, Romayne Dirling, Evelyn Fredericks, Nellie Lobdell and Genevieve Heasley?"

Seems as though we really did get around in those days!

On that particular day back in 1926 Warren was getting ready to play Jamestown and the column mentions the fact that Chuck Selkin "and his henchman, Logan" were busily engaged in completing arrangements for a Fox club dance to follow the game. Jamestown won, 19-0.

Mention in Monday's paper of the need for three coonskin caps for props in a play brought what do you think? Yes, three coonskin caps! Any time you need three pairs of purple shoes with 80-inch laces or three bustles with adjust-

"My Dodge has not only proved to be a real saver on gas—but we are real pleased with Dodge dependability. Hauling pipes, fixtures, plumbing tools and other heavy equipment has broken down several trucks for us. Feller Not Ready To Be Sacrificed, Helps Indians Win

By JOE REICHLER
A. P. Sports Writer

"Expendable" Bob Feller may have lost some of his mound magic of years gone by but the stout-hearted Cleveland righthander is not ready to act as a sacrificial lamb for anyone.

The former strikeout king was enjoying the last laugh today following one of his better performances of the year in which he teamed up with three other "expendable" teammates to bring a most important victory to the Indians.

The one-line 10th Farm-boy came within two outs of winning a hurling duel from the fabulous Bobby Shantz last night before leaving the mound in the ninth inning with the Indians and Athletics deadlocked at 3-3.

The Indians went on to capture a thrill-packed 6-3 triumph in 11 innings to remain within one game of the American League - leading Yankees, who whipped the St.

Louis Browns, 6-3, in New York. A two-run triple by castoff Barney McCosky, a Philadelphia discard, snapped the 3-3 deadlock and gave reliever Lou Brissie the win. Brissie, who also once wore the livery of the Athletics, retired all eight men he faced and struck out pinch hitter Ken Thomas and the dangerous Eddie Joost with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth after relieving Feller.

It was a great night for Manager Al Lopez, who not only saw Feller pitch one-hit ball for seven innings, but had the satisfaction of seeing George Strickland, his emergency shortstop, clout a two-run homer in the seventh to break a scoreless duel between the two Bobbies. It was only two days ago that Lopez had benched Ray Boone and had given the post to Strickland, a throw-in in a deal with Pittsburgh.

Brooklyn's runaway Dodgers moved a step nearer to the National League flag, sweeping the four-game series in St. Louis with a 4-3 success over the Cardinals. The second-place New York Giants remained 10½ lengths behind the Dodgers, winning a 14-7 slugfest in Pittsburgh. Boston Braves blanked the Reds in Cincinnati, 2-0, and the Chicago Cubs eked out a 13-inning 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Washington moved into fourth place in the American League as Bob Porterfield batted in the only run in winning a 1-0 mound duel from Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox. The third-place Boston Red Sox continued to trail the Yankees by 3½ games, vanquishing the Detroit Tigers, 11-3.

According to a Cleveland writer, Feller, assigned to oppose Shantz in place of Mike Garcia, the Cleveland ace, was being sacrificed to

Maryland Officially Takes Its Place as Top Football Power

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—One word from the Southern Conference and Maryland and Clemson did as they pleased.

Ironically, Maryland was denied the privilege of playing football within the 17-school league this season after giving the conference its greatest victory. That came in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1, when the Terrible Terrapins made it 12 in a row rupturing highly touted Tennessee of the Southeastern Conference, 31-0.

The Southern Conference, you see, had ruled against post-season games, but Maryland frankly needed the $125,000 to retire bonds in its new parabola-type Byrd Stadium and maintain its high-pressure program.

Clemson also obviously could use a few shakies, so also defied the governing fathers, and lost to Miami of Coral Gables, 14-0, in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl on New Year's Day.

So, misery loving company, Maryland and Clemson automatically were thrown together to fill one of five cancelled conference dates.

OUTSIDE of shortening the schedule by one game to nine and playing one more on the road than it would like, Maryland was kicked upstairs by its cleavage with the Southern Conference. In addition to Clemson, the swift Sea Turtles hastily filled in with Auburn, Harry Agganis and Boston University and Mississippi. They are all away, but stronger than Washington and Lee, George Washington and West Virginia, circuit outside on the slate together with North Carolina and North Carolina State last trip.

Maryland has only three home games this time—with Navy and Louisiana State in addition to Clemson, but a vastly more representative card also includes Missouri, Georgia and Alabama.

Then the Sugar Bowl again and more real sugar, match, this time probably against Oklahoma, which Big Jim Tatum jumped to bring his five-year plan at Maryland to such a successful conclusion.

Tatum is so confident that he defies all the fine old tear-dropping tradition of the trade with the prediction that Maryland will be just as good in 1952 as it was in '51. The South Carolinian has built well. Maryland has officially arrived as the major football power President Curley Byrd so badly wanted it to be.

Brown Is Favored To Win Tournament

Pittsburgh P—Willie Brown of Houston, Tex., is a slight favorite today to win the amateur tournament of the United Golf Association. Brown defeated former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, 1-up, yesterday.

Louis, defending title holder, bowed out of the tourney along with medalist Bob Williams, of Cleveland. Jim Paul of New York ousted Williams, 3 and 2.

Former Redskin On Yale Coaching Staff

New Haven, Conn. P—Jerry Neri, formerly of the Washington Redskins, today was named varsity backfield coach at Yale by athletic director Bob Hall.

Neri was to assume his new duties as an assistant to head coach Jordan Oliver immediately.

Neri joined the Redskins staff when Loyola abandoned its football program after last fall. He is a native of Philadelphia and was an outstanding back at Villanova.

New Transmission Line Will Be Laid

Corry Journal: A large gas transmission line, similar to that constructed by the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. through the district a few years ago, will be laid from Greenville to a tremendous new underground storage near Coudersport.

Surveys are now under way for the new multi-million dollar line which will carry gas from Corpus Christi, Tex., to the former Hebron field which a score of years ago poured out millions of cubic feet of natural gas.

After a few years this supply ran out and it is the intention of the Tennessee Gas Transmission firm to pump billions of feet of natural gas back into the ground to create a reserve that can be taken out at any time and used.

The project is not expected to prove of any value as far as the Corry district is concerned since the reserve gas will be used primarily to provide relief during critical periods for points through New York and the New England states.

The big line will start at Greenville, only a few miles from the Ohio line, and follow a northeasterly course near Oil City to Musette, near Marienville, and south of Kane to the Hebron field.

A corps of 16 engineers and right-of-way men are currently processing surveys and clearing the right-of-ways for the 24-inch line which will be 138 miles in length.

Speed Blamed in Most Traffic Cases

Nearly two out of every three drivers arrested on Pennsylvania roads for traffic violations are nabbed for speeding because they are potential killers, even though they may regard racing along the highways as an innocent sport or thrill, T. Elmer Transeau, state director of highway safety, declared today.

Emphasizing that speed is the worst killer of men, women and children in traffic accidents, Mr. Transeau urged Pennsylvania drivers to slow down before they kill or are killed in traffic accidents resulting from excessive speeds.

"If the element of speed could be reduced on the highways, traffic deaths would also be reduced," said the state highway safety chief, "and a wider enforcement of the present speed laws, if it were possible, would probably accomplish the same results. But it would be physically impossible for any police force to keep pace with the great increase in the number of motor vehicles and operators of the past decade. For this reason our highways cannot be sufficiently patrolled to curb the antics of the selfish driver. Speed arrests in Pennsylvania exceed 65 per cent of total traffic arrests. Unfortunately, it is the speeder who is not caught who is the killer on our highways."

Most Hearts enthusiasts begin each hand with a pass of three cards to the player at the left. As soon as the last card has been dealt, each player picks up his hand, sorts it and selects three cards to be passed.

He puts these cards face down on the table between him and the player at his left. It takes some players longer to make up their minds than others, but eventually each player has put three cards down on the table, and then everybody moves his three cards to the left and accepts three cards from the player at the right.

The privilege of getting rid of three cards is very valuable. Properly used, it can help you win—or, at least, cut down your losses. Moreover, you can often deduce, from the three new cards that you get, something about the hand of the player at your right.

What should you pass? For one thing, you practically never pass a low spade. You may be passed the ace, king or queen of spades; and, if so, your low spades may save you.

High spades (queen or higher), are usually good cards to pass. Certainly, you should pass a high spade if your hand contains only two or three spades in all. With five or more spades, it is not important to pass a high spade.

Your length will protect you. If you have a good hand with a long spade suit, you don't dream of passing the queen of spades. You have a better chance to get rid of the black lady if you hold it than if you give it away.

The heart suit is much like the spades. Never pass very low hearts (unless you are planning an attempt to take all of the hearts and the queen of spades); they are not dangerous in your hand, and they may protect you if you receive a high heart or two from the player at your right.

It is often wise to pass a high heart from any short holding in hearts. There is no particular need, however, to pass high hearts if you have five or more cards in the suit, particularly if they include two or three very low cards.

If you have no problems in either spades or hearts, you must consider the advisability of passing clubs or diamonds. Here again a long suit is no problem, particularly if it includes a couple of very low cards.

With a short holding, pass it all or, leaving yourself with a void suit. You may receive cards in that same suit from the player at your right, but if you don't you will probably get a very bad deal. With a short holding, pass it all
